

Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 19 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

Further showers on Wednesday. Dry but chilly tonight, frost probable.

Today:

After a fine, sunny start, cloud will soon thicken with scattered showers developing again. Some will become heavy during the afternoon, especially in eastern parts. Perhaps drier and brighter in the west, though staying rather cloudy. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Tonight:

Any showers will die away during the evening, followed by largely clear skies. Turning chilly with grass frosts locally, mist and shallow fog patches by dawn. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Thursday:

Becoming wet and windy after a dry and bright start. Rain heavy at times, particularly over the western hills during the afternoon and evening. Feeling rather cool. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:

Breezy and wet on Friday, with showers or longer spells of rain. Cloudy though brightening up on Saturday, with afternoon showers. Chilly start on Sunday, then further showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.